

THE FLYING BLIND

The Flying Blind is what can only be described as an American band. The members are long-time friends, live in different cities and work together mostly over the internet. Once a year, they converge on a small studio outside Chicago for a few weeks of high-octane debauchery and tracking. This EP is a few songs from the May 2012 sessions.

Ex-Angelino guitarist Kevin Crosslin produces and remixes under the name Cavestar.

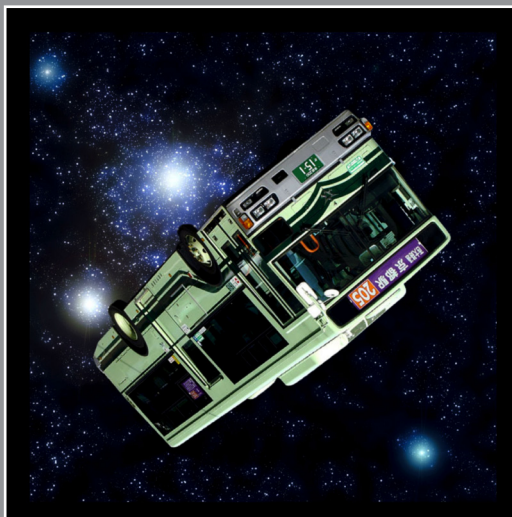

Vocalist and songwriter Jon Partelow hails from Los Angeles by way of Phoenix.

Bassist Robin Locksley is a Chicago native, although he spends several months a year in the United Kingdom.

Todd Jewell is a Nashville session drummer. He tours with rockabilly legend Wanda Jackson.

The art for the EP is a Kyoto city bus floating upside-down in space. The band had once joked with the idea of calling itself 'Starbus'.
